DANIELSON

Body Believed to be Sabri Ali, Murdered Albanian, Discovered in Mill Ditch at Attawaugus—Five of the Man's Countrymen Taken Into Custody on Suspicion of Having Knowledge of His Death—Rumors of Foul Play Came First From Waterbury.

Finding of the body of a murdered man, believed to be Sabri Ali, an Albanian, in the mill ditch at Attawaugus Thursday afternoon, gave the people of that village a shock and incidentally substantiated a report that attracted the attention of the state police a few weeks ago that a man had been done to death at Goodyear. Following the finding of the body a group of five Albanians with whom the dead man made his home at Goodyear, where he was employed in the mill up to about seven weeks ago, were taken into custody and are being held for an inquiry that will be instituted this morning. Officers were seeking for two more Albanians on Thursday night at North Grosvenordale and at Waterbury.

Wrapped in Burlap.

When the body was found Thursday afternoon it was wrapped securely in burlap that had been tied about the head and neck. The body had been drawn close up to the body and held in that position by chains that were fastened to the ankles and legs and then stretched upward and wound about the body just above the hips. Inside the burlap and resting on the ground was a small, light-colored stone, placed there that the body might not rise again to the surface and be carried into the river. The stone, from which it eventually had drifted through the locks and into the mill ditch, was found by the police. Finally brought up against the iron bar gratings that keep foreign matter from passing into the river was a big stone. It was afterwards found, weighed 40 pounds.

Discovered by Charles Weeks. Charles Weeks, who keeps the grates of the ditch clear, discovered the body about 1 p. m. It was not there a few hours before he said, and evidently was not there long, that he had found it. One theory advanced was that the body, notwithstanding the heavy stone and being carried into the river, had been face by the accumulated grates within it and the effect of the thunderstorm during the early hours of Wednesday morning. At what point the body was thrown into the river or ditch remains a mystery.

Coroner Present.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of the mill when the body was removed from the ditch and directed that it be taken charge by undertaker Louis W. Kennedy to be buried in the cemetery. The body was in an advanced stage of decomposition. It was found when the wrappings were removed in Danielson, but Alex Mileau, overseer of the spinning department at Goodyear of the Goodyear Cotton company identified it as that of an employee in his department who has been missing for nearly two months and who was known at the plant as Sabri Ali.

Industrious Workman.

Agent Robert W. Boys of the mill company and Alex Mileau describe Ali as a hard working and saving employee, who was always on the job and willing to work overtime when opportunity offered. Boys said that it is understood that the man was in the habit of carrying all of his savings in a small box, and that he had been carrying it with him when he was killed. Another story was that Ali was killed in a quarrel over a case of cards, the fact being that the body was disposed of. No bullet wounds were found on the body in the superficial examination made Thursday. The face was bruised. The method of killing the man is not expected to be determined until Medical Examiner Dr. George Burroughs performs the autopsy today.

Worked There Before.

The dead man during the last period of his employment at Goodyear had been with the company about four months. He had worked there at different times previously, but it was understood that the man was a two-tenement house in what is known as the mill house, below the mill and on the most western row of houses, the last in the line, over the bank of the river. He was the household, nor has there been. It is the practice of the Albanians to have a household and a separate house, appointed housekeeper and paid so much per week.

No Quarrel.

At the place where Ali lived no quarrel was heard at about the time Ali is supposed to have been murdered. It is believed, though, that he was quarreled at Goodyear, the body wrapped as described, the chains used being the old spinning spindles from the mill, and then taken to some place near Attawaugus in some kind of a vehicle and thrown in the river, with the expectation that the stream would forever hide the crime within its bosom, the heavy stone helping to accomplish this.

News via Waterbury.

The first authorities at Goodyear heard that anything suspicious had occurred was a few days after Ali's disappearance. At that time, however, attention was paid, for the Albanians come and go at the mill as fancy happens, and no one was particularly concerned. From Waterbury came the information, a friend of Ali's furnishing it, that he had been murdered. Local and state police worked on the case, questioned the men who are now locked up, but nothing of value was developed and the case was dropped. No charges have been preferred against the men now held here.

There is a week's pay due the dead man at the mill of the Goodyear Cotton company.

Money Found.

Nothing of value was found upon Ali's person in the search made at the undertaking rooms. The man had on a pair of blue trousers, coarse but good underwear, an outside shirt, a fancy vest, stockings and a pair of puttees. A new black shoe, the fancy vest helped make his identification quite certain as Sabri Ali, for he used to wear this garment to work at times. There was no money in his pockets. The body was very carefully and securely wrapped, the only portion of it that showed was the head, which protruded from the burlap to the wrist. The heavy stone was firmly in place, inside the burlap, on the man's chest.

All was about 28 years of age.

PUTNAM

Belle Pasco Arrested in Local Hotel and Taken Back to Springfield—Charged With Keeping Disorderly House—Harry L. Hopkins First to Make Military Returns—Death of Mrs. Saleb Shippee—Coroner Inspects Trench Where Isai Marion Was Killed.

On a bench warrant issued in the superior court for Hampden County, Mass., a woman known as Belle Pasco, is named in the warrant, was taken into custody at a local hotel early Thursday morning and turned over to David J. Manning of the detective department of the state of Massachusetts and taken to Springfield, where she is to face a charge of having conducted a disorderly house. The woman arrived here late Wednesday night with a younger woman and registered as Mrs. Smith. The younger woman registered as Anna Smith.

Her arrival she got into communication, by telephone, with a party in Woonsocket, where Detective Manning is located. Manning is looking for her and this fact became known to the officer, who, having located her here, drove her to the hotel where she was staying and then to the court house, where she arrived here in the early hours of Thursday.

Julius Cordier accompanied Detective Manning to take Mrs. Pasco into custody. The woman made no objection to going back to Springfield, but she was taken to the court house and then to the hotel where she was staying.

MISS PILLING'S REPORT

To be Presented at Meeting of State Federation.

As chairman of the federation's committee on education, Miss Pilling will make a report on education in Connecticut at the annual meeting of the National Federation of Women's Clubs in Bridgeport today. The following, relative to rural life, is an extract from Miss Pilling's report.

Improvement of Rural Schools.

Many of the clubs of the state have done definite work in this direction. The Madison Woman's club has been instrumental in starting a Parent-Teacher Association, and has placed a chart in one of the primary rooms. MILITARY CENSUS RETURNS

First Card Received by Town Clerk—Flag From Worcester.

Town Clerk David Flag received Thursday the first of the military census returns from the town of Worcester. The card was filled out by Worcester by Harry L. Hopkins, 25, whose home is in this city. Mr. Hopkins stated Thursday afternoon that he had received the card from Worcester and his address in that city is 25.

The receipt of the card was something of a surprise to Mr. Flag. No military census card has been received before June 5 have been received here; neither have cards for the data required been received.

Evidently the taking of returns is underway in the Massachusetts city, however, the card is in the official form that is to be used and all about it is in regular form.

Last year's card is in the official form that is to be used and all about it is in regular form. The card is in the official form that is to be used and all about it is in regular form. The card is in the official form that is to be used and all about it is in regular form.

Coroner Inspects Trench.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson made a visit to this city Thursday morning and inspected the trench on Church street where the cave-in occurred Wednesday afternoon. The trench was about 10 feet deep and 1
